Anyway as my Shrink has been working with me I am finding myself more and more depressed. I don't know who I am right now and my life seems to be falling apart at the seams. I don't feel like I belong anywhere.

I seem to be much more comfortable in the past rather than the present. I own the land in Oklahoma and I don't need much to build a shelter. After all I do much better on my own living the life of a hermit. I don't have any desire to help anyone anymore, I just seem to get hurt that way. On the other hand I am a different person when I am on my Meds.

My friend Charity tells me that I shouldn't put too much weight on some label put on me by some doctors. It is funny, that I used to tell Kansa the same thing. I guess life is so much easier when you are looking in from the outside. Anyway I am planning my life around cutting off all ties to the world. I say this as I am planning to get up and go to church. I love this kind of paradox.

But at the same time my friend Brianna and her family think that I am stealing from them. I am just keeping to myself trapped in my head and scared of what will come for me in the future.

Much of what I see in my future has to do with getting off of the grid. It will be a while before I can convert the Pathfinder to electric. So to save money on gas biofuel is a good option.

The Myth Busters confirmed that the 2001 Nissan Pathfinder should be able to run on moonshine. Now how do I make it.

As I step away from the grid and turn my back on government in and those who constantly betray the freedom on the individual, I will need to learn to adapt to my environment.

As I have said before true freedom comes from knowledge and no government or angry mob can take knowledge away from you. The more I study, the more I am certain that I can make the trip to Oklahoma to settle on my land. Ironically the land in Oklahoma was the only thing that I didn't lose to my wife in our divorce.

Soap making will free up other resources on the trip.

Once I get to the destination electric off-grid power will be needed.

Warning To All Who Value Freedom

The existence of an obsolete government is threatened by people who want to claim their God given right to freedom. The government is truly going to hate me once I get this done.
